

Home Alone (7 – 11 year olds)

In this scene a kid has been accidentally left home alone while his parents went away on holidays. Here the kid is proving to himself that he can look after himself just fine while home alone.

I took a shower washing every body part with actual soap; including all my major crevices; including in between my toes and in my bellybutton which I never did before but sort of enjoyed. I washed my hair with adult formula shampoo and used crème-rinse for that just washed shine. I can't seem to find my toothbrush so I'll pick one up when I go out today. Other than that, I'm in good shape.

Ferris Buellers day off (12 – 15 year olds)

In this scene a teen is confiding how he gets away with pretending to be too ill to go to school.

This is my ninth sick day this semester. It's getting pretty tough coming up with new illnesses. If I go for ten I'm probably gonna have to barf up a lung. So I better make this one count. The key to faking out the parents is the clammy hands. It's a good non specific symptom. I'm a big believer in it. A lot of people will tell you that a good phony fever is a dead lock. But you get a nervous mother, you could wind up in the doctor's office. That's worse than school. You fake a stomach cramp, and when you're bent over, moaning and wailing, you lick your palms. It's a little childish and stupid. But then, so is high school. Life moves pretty fast. If you don't stop and look around once in a while, you could miss it.
